

Entry 2 - Connie Lowe, “Marie Antoinette - Ready for the Masquerade Ball”

Bio

Growing up in a small town, I always loved art of all kinds. In college I majored in art and literature. In my late twenties I began designing clothing for antique dolls and still do so today. I discovered BJDS four years ago and fell in love with the freedom to work “outside the box”. To me, it is creating art, and doing something I love.

Poem

“Marie Antoinette Ready for the Masquerade Ball”

Planning a Party Always filled her with dread
So much so she lost her head
It was always, “what to wear, what to bake,”
“Oh, forget dinner, let them eat Cake!”

Outfit

My costume depicts Ellowyne as Marie Antoinette Ready for the masquerade ball. It is made with modern fabrics and antique trims And features a ships hat.
